1. In order to sustain and move forward on the progress made through this strategy, additional support to the Labrador Innu communities will be required.	AANDC will contribute to the Labrador Innu efforts in building healthy, sustainable and resilient communities by stabilizing funding for on-reserve programs and services equivalent to that provided to other First Nations. Health Canada will continue to contribute to Innu community-based healing goals by supporting a range of community health programs in Natuashish and Sheshatshiu.	September 2010 April 2010	Status: Closed Update/Rationale: As of 30/09/2010: AANDC's annual funding of $15 million, under the Labrador Innu Comprehensive Healing Strategy, ended March 31 2010. Instead, annual funding of $15 million is now in AANDC's A-base. AANDC's now funds the Labrador Innu using the same funding methodology, monitoring and evaluating of basic programs and services for all First Nations on-reserve. While the programs being funded are not new, permanent funding replaces that provided under a time-limited strategy, thereby allowing for better planning and implementation of changes to address new priorities. Beyond regular programs and services, the Department also has a number of proposal-based programs available to all First Nations on-reserve. The Atlantic Region continues to work with the Labrador Innu to assist in identifying priorities and present proposal-based opportunities for Innu consideration. AES: Closed – Fully Implemented.

3. The Innu and the federal government need to engage in a facilitated process whereby both can mutually develop the key terms and definitions and then respectively share them in an open and constructive dialogue to reach a mutually agreed upon approach to healing for future activities. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ An Innu worldview/perspective should be incorporated into the strategy and clearly reflected in key healing definitions and related activities. These should inform and influence the design, delivery and implementation of the new phase of the strategy. 	AANDC will continue participating in open and constructive dialogue with the Innu and other federal and provincial partners through the existing tripartite mechanisms to contribute to building healthy, sustainable and resilient communities. Existing tripartite mechanisms will be used by HC to develop a shared understanding of key terms and definitions such as 'healing', 'capacity' and 'capacity building' in the context of moving forward.	April 2010 March 2011	Status: Ongoing through Regional Operations Update/Rationale: As of 31/03/2012: AANDC and HC have prepared a joint formal response to the Innu with respect to their proposal which is anticipated to be finalized shortly. The continuation of LICHS funding from HC was recently confirmed as was support for the on-going work of the Income Support and Child, Youth and Family Services Sub-Committees from AANDC. AANDC and HC have encouraged the Innu to move forward with the commencement/completions of the community healing plans. AES: Close – Fully implemented. These mechanisms are part of AANDC's ongoing participation in the healing approach with the Innu communities and Health Canada. Structures are in place and operating as intended.

4. Implement a healing needs assessment in the two communities to better understand ongoing and unmet needs. This should include an evaluation matrix, and a Performance Measurement Strategy. The findings generated from the needs assessment and associated documents should be presented to the Main Table.	AANDC will continue participating in the open and constructive dialogue with the Innu and other federal and provincial partners to support community-wide Innu goals to build resilient and sustainable communities by participating in the Main Table. Pending renewal of the strategy, HC, in partnership with the Mushuau and Sheshatshiu Innu and other stakeholders, will support a healing needs assessment that will inform the next phase of healing.	April 2010 March 2011	Status: Closed Update/Rationale: As of 30/09/2010: This recommendation pertains to Health Canada. AANDC’s will continue dialogue with the Labrador Innu on relevant issues (such as infrastructure, education, social programs, etc.) through the Tripartite Main Table. AES: Closed – Fully Implemented. No longer relevant as a specific recommendation to AANDC, as it pertains to Health Canada’s ongoing involvement in the Strategy.
5. Based upon the evidence presented and input provided by the Innu, a determination should be made by all partners as to how existing programs and services might be appropriately adjusted, including exploring possible alternatives to existing funding authority arrangements, but remaining consistent with departmental commitments to support Labrador Innu healing. The findings and resulting determinations should be used to guide the new phase of the strategy.	AANDC and other federal departments have a range of proposal-based programs that could support the Innu priorities. AANDC will provide information and assist the Innu to submit proposals to access this potential programming. Health Canada will work with the Innu to determine how existing community health programs might be adjusted to better align with Innu healing priorities.	April 2010 June 2011	Status: Recommend to Close – Completed. Update/Rationale: As of 30/09/2010: AANDC’s staff are working with the Innu to support priorities and present proposal-based opportunities as are available to any other First Nation on-reserve. Previously, the Innu had specific funds allocated under the Labrador Innu Comprehensive Strategy to address some of these areas. The Innu can now seek access to funds through the submission of proposals to regular AANDC programs, as other communities do. Through the Tripartite Main Table, AANDC is working with the Innu to further identify key stakeholders. Other federal departments include: Human Resources and Skills Development Canada – regular programs will continue to be provided (Aboriginal Skills and Employments Partnerships); Public Safety Canada – Crime Prevention programming (e.g. Project Venture Initiative), First Nation Policing Programs and Aboriginal Corrections Police Unit (provision of advice and support for the development of community healing strategies in Innu communities through sharing knowledge and supporting capacity building opportunities). This addresses the recommendation though AANDC's role at the Tripartite Main Table, which is to assist the Innu in further identifying broader partners and programs and services to address changing priorities and a more comprehensive approach to support and investments made in

	Health Canada's ongoing participation in existing tripartite mechanisms, such as the Main Table, will support Innu capacity to engage broader community membership in building resilient and sustainable communities.	March 2011	Once support is confirmed, AANDC will participate in the Innu Healing Round Table, which replaces the Main Table. AES: Close – Fully implemented. As AANDC support via existing tripartite mechanisms is part of the ongoing structure, this process is operating as intended.
9. Health Canada: Government and Innu engage in a process to agree together how best to realign resources currently allocated to the LHS in Goose Bay so that the funds flow directly to the communities and utilize Innu expertise to the extent possible. The overarching rationale is to better serve the communities according to their identified needs.	AANDC will contribute to the Labrador Innu efforts in building healthy, sustainable and resilient communities by stabilizing funding for on-reserve programs and services equivalent to that provided to other First Nations. Health Canada will continue to contribute to Innu community-based healing goals by supporting a range of community health programs in Natuashish and Sheshatshiu.	June 2011	Status: Closed Update/Rationale: As of 30/09/2010: AANDC's: This recommendation pertains to Health Canada. AES: Closed – Fully Implemented. No further follow-up required for AANDC, as this recommendation pertains to Health Canada's ongoing involvement in the Strategy. The original AANDC action item has been completed through the implementation of A-base funding.
